

Hello to all of my Enigma World Code Group friends,

Did you know that even decrypted Enigma messages were not exempt from the red pen of the British editor? It's true, but the reason was not because the messages contained a bunch of swear words. As a matter of fact, Enigma messages usually displayed a very courteous and gentlemanly tone. . . . except for Lemp. Remember our U-boat skipper Lemp? When ordered to stay on station out in the Atlantic and send-in weather reports instead of coming back to base to refuel and rearm, he sent his famous, not-so-gentlemanly answer, "S_ _ t! Lemp."

Use my U-571, October 28, 1944 codesheet. The Kenngruppen is in play. Please use Auto type. (See last October.)
