

A NEW CHALLENGE IN SOCIAL NETWORKING

Attention Engima enthusiasts!: Use a free website and an award-winning German WWII Enigma code simulator to send and receive social-networking messages to old friends and new ones worldwide.

- The webmaster (TT) is a computer professional who has designed the site to work smoothly and seamlessly .
- The instructions were written by a professional technical writer (BK) so that they are clear, accurate, and easy to understand.
- The executive director, Dirk Rijmenants, wrote the simulator program and is the driving force behind this project.

All of the encrypting and decrypting documents and instructions you will need are in the public domain and open to anyone. EWCG is a hobby group, not a secret club.

So get a friend, and both of you join the group at <http://www.EnigmaWorldCodeGroup.com> . That way you will have a ready-made partner for your first practice message. After that, it's up to you. Click on anyone in the group, and send them a message. Have fun with this new/old technology—Enigma.
